

Happy D.2 Plus c-shaped and c-bonded Millimetric Elegance of Shape

Product innovation has always been a core approach at Duravit and it is once again evident in the upgrade to the Happy D.2 Plus series by sieger design, with two exciting new bathroom solutions in dark and light tones using the exclusive c-bonded and c-shaped technologies.

The patented c-bonded technology was specifically designed for the characteristic lines of this series, forging a near seamless unity between the rounded washbasins and matching units. The console washbasins can be combined with the vanity units or the new floor-standing metal console in matt black, with an integrated towel rail.

C-shaped technology is the innovative next step for the company's patented c-bonded process, in which a shiny external ceramic profile is combined with the vanity unit or the chrome-plated metal console. In both solutions, the rounded shape of the ceramic basin perfectly matches the furniture unit, leaving a precise 4 mm gap and no overhang or recess. The washbasin in the new series is still made with the highly resistant DuraCeram® ceramic composite that has all the benefits of glazed ceramic, such as ease of cleaning and robustness, but also offers incredible scope for design innovation. The flat, slim basin with a skillfully integrated tap platform is a unifying element for the collection and comes in three sizes (575, 775 and 975 mm). The main element can be combined with a floor-standing metal console with integrated towel rack, with an option to include a shelf or drawer. A seat (625 mm wide) with a drawer and an optional greige cushion can also be added to the left or the right. The vanity units come with two drawers and are wall mounted to optimize space usage. There are eleven finishes from luxury wood to light and dark matt surfaces, such as Graphite Super Matt, which even has a special anti-fingerprint coating. The pull-out drawers can be supplied with internal space organizers in walnut or maple. The latest additions from Duravit offer even more scope to customize the bathroom as they can all be matched with elements in the Happy D.2 and Happy D.2 Plus design series.
