Teodoro Cabrilla Interior design: The One Atelier

Epic Marbella Italian Marble in Luxury Homes in Andalusia Marbella, Spain

The Golden Mile in the famed southern Spanish resort of Marbella is an oasis of exclusive well-being and the perfect setting for Epic Marbella, the prototype villa of a new project comprising 56 luxury residences developed by Sierra Blanca Estates. Teodoro Cabrilla is the architect behind the design, with The One Atelier taking charge of the interior design and Fendi Casa of the furnishings. This model home combines a sustainable, practical design with elegant finishings. The whole development is a stone's throw from the Puerto Banús marina, with the floor areas for the villas ranging from 450 to 920 sq. m, coupled with large terraces and gardens. Some also have a private pool. Full-height windows flood the apartments and lofts with natural light and enviable views of the Mediterranean Sea or the Sierra Nevada mountains. The communal areas house an extensive array of services, including a concierge, gym, spa with hammam and sauna, swimming pool and spaces for smart working and for children.

Margraf marble is a defining feature, used in three types, in light and neutral hues. The cladding for the interiors and staircases uses the veining of the polished New Calacatta slabs (280 sq. m) in combination with the warmth of oak parquet to create a highly characteristic, unique effect. Travertino Romano Classico (370 sq. m) is particularly resistant to slipping and abrasion, so it was chosen to embellish the bathrooms and kitchens in beige and hazelnut shades. Finally, for the outdoor areas and expansive terraces, Lipica Fiorito was chosen (400 sq. m), in a flamed non-slip finish, which guarantees excellent adherence even in high humidity.
